The Valley of the Shaddow

Every hour of every day all over the world, on land, sea and in the air, the finest and best of our youth are passing through the valley of the shadow. At the last minute rush it is danger, it is not asked of them to obtain service from the local national or racial stock they live. The phrase "Selective Service" does not mean selection by these discriminative canons. Instead, it means that they are chosen for their physical fitness and their mental ability to endure hardship, strain, stress and privation, to obey and carry out orders, to follow and to lead. In short, that they have the resiliency and high courage of youth.

So our boys go into the valley of the shadow. Some will come out - unchanged, for who that faces death bravely, fears death? Many will never return. Differing though they may in class, color or creed, they will lie alike in distant graves, in land honored forever by the fact that they died that others might be free.

Three such boys died in the line of duty a short time ago - a Protestant named Vogel, a Catholic named Sipowaky and a Jew named Goldberg. There is room for editorials galore on that statement. But more significant to me than any editorial was a phase in the government story - "Three American boys in the Navy, a Protestant, a Catholic and a Jew, united by their common faith in American democracy and in freedom, met death together."

They met death, as brave men meet the thing they fear. United by their common faith in American democracy and in freedom, they walked into the valley of the shadow never to return.

Our hearts go out to those they left behind them, those who too, go through the valley of separation. But to them is one consolation they share in common. Though these had followed different roads of faith to each was vouchsafed the promise of the Psalmist David: "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil for thy staff with me. Thy rod and they stay they comfort me." And each family who mourns rests secure in the faith that beyond the valley of the shadow lies an eternal peace.

the limited personnel that the office is staffed with in this area it is important that the taxpayers file their returns as early as possible and take advantage of this service. If too many of the taxpayers wait until the last minute rush it is likely that they will not be able to obtain service from the local collectors office. The commission of internal revenue advises that taxpayers must file their returns before March 15, 1943, and that if they fail to do so they will be subject to penalty for failure to file on time. Deputy collector Roger Howe will be at Morehead from the 1st of March through the 6th, as well as on March 15.

T B I To Hold Conference At Flemingsburg

The Federal Bureau of Investigation will hold an FBI Quarterly Police Conference in the Flemingsburg Graded School, Flemingsburg, Ky. from 12:30 March 11, 1943. Police agencies from the following counties will be invited to attend this conference which is one of a series being held during March, 1943, throughout the state of Kentucky and the entire nation under the auspices of the FBI.

Smith, Superintendent of Police Training Kentucky State Highway Patrol, Frankfort, Ky. will be the principal speakers on the program in addition to instructional work to be given by a representative of the FBI.

The principal topic to be discussed by the FBI at this conference is

Explainers To Help In Food Stores In Kentucky

"Not a single OPA restriction is going to last one minute longer than is necessary," Prentiss M. Brown, OPA administrator, said last week in announcing that motorists who wish to have their tires recapped with reclaimed rubber no longer have to apply to their War Price and Rationing Boards for permission.

With a limited group of play shoes being released from rationing along with certain other types not generally used for street-wear, the OPA has appealed to consumers to limit the purchases of these shoes to one pair per person.

Housewives again will buy sugar in the familiar 5-pound sacks and boxes when sugar stamp No. 12 becomes valid on March 16. However, the five pounds must last from that date until the end of May - a period of 11 weeks.

You may not give away ration stamp or rationed food, but you may give away up to 50 quarts of home-canned foods, jams and jellies are not rationed.

The OPA has allowed a seven day over-leaf period for the first and second period food stamps. Stamps A, B, and C will be valid through March 31 and the second period food stamp will be valid from March 25 through April 30.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

At this time of year when appetites are apt to become jaded, plan for variety in meals, is the advice of food specialists at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. Through the use of different main dishes and new ways of preparing vegetables or a satisfying dessert such as the one given below, a special might be made tempting.
For a Sunday or other special dinner, this menu will have both eye and taste appeal: smothered chicken, sliced sweet potatoes and corned apples baked together, buttered broccoli, cabbage slaw with mint, whole wheat rolls with butter, graham cracker pudding.

FRUIT NEEDS SPRAYING
Good crop prospects include fruit this year. But spraying is necessary to have clean fruit, regardless of the season. For the benefit of orchard owners, the Kentucky College of Agriculture has published "spray schedules" for apples, peaches and plums. The leaflets, which contain information on when and how to spray, may be obtained at offices of county agents or by writing to the college at Lexington.

CIVILIAN DEFENSE

In food stores throughout the Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia, volunteer "Explainers" recruited through local Defense Councils are informing housewives on the new point rationing system that will go into effect March 1, Dan T. Moore, Director of the U. S. Office of Civilian Defense for the Fifth Region, announced today.

"These Explainers have undergone a thorough course in training and will have at hand simple authoritative literature to help explain the details of point rationing," said Mr. Moore. "They will be stationed at booths or behind counters, or will circulate among customers to do their informational job."

"Some communities are using this method exclusively to explain point rationing, others are doing the explanation work from door to door through their Block Organization, while in a number of cities and towns a combination of these two methods are in use."

The Explainers are versed not only in the technical details involving the point values of the various canned goods and other products rationed, but also in the necessity for the rationing of food. They are helping grocers answer the multitude of questions that shoppers are asking about the why and how of point rationing.

OPA
Periodic tire inspection requirements are in no way relaxed by the Office of Price Administration's recent order freeing tire recapping with passenger type camberback from ration restriction. Boyd McCullough, chairman of the local War Price Rationing Board said today.
The OPA official made this statement to correct a mistaken belief apparently held by some motorists.

Remember when Johnny was just a little boy?

IT SEEMS only yesterday that Johnny was romping through his childhood. Remember? As if you ever could forget. Even in those days, he had his troubles, and they seemed great and unbearable until he brought them to you. After all, Mom or Dad could make the world right again with a word or a kiss.

Now your Johnny is somewhere on many of the war-shattered fields where countless thousands of Johnnies are fighting—fighting for Mom and Dad and The Girl—against the forces of evil. He may be pouring out his lifeblood. And you—Mom and Dad—can't be there to take his hand and make everything all right again.

But the American Red Cross, "The Greatest Mother," is there and will continue to be there if we—all the Moms and Dads and Girls—give a little of our plenty to pay the cost.

If Johnny was among the wounded today, a blood transfusion may be required to save his life—blood contributed to the American Red Cross by Americans back home. Certainly! Yes, but it costs money to store and transport this precious plasma which may save Johnny's life. Back at the home front, Johnny's wounds will be treated by army nurses, recruited by the Red Cross. Sympathetic to the cause, they will advise you of the best way to donate blood better, often Red Cross workers will be with him to get the necessary consent, wishing him good luck. They will be wishing him good luck, too, in getting that little corner of his conscience to acquiesce.

Maybe Johnny hasn't been working. But the chances are he's lonely and sick for home. He can't come home, but he can go to the American Red Cross Club. True—that isn't his own home, but he will find a warm welcome, a good meal and amusements.

Perhaps Johnny is in an enemy prison camp. The Red Cross will help him there, too—help him to get mail from home and some of the comforts which will help to keep his morale up. Or suppose you are in trouble at home, and Johnny can't come back to help straighten things out. . . . There are thousands of Red Cross workers throughout the country, and millions of volunteers, ready to do it for him.

The American Red Cross needs $100,000,000 to carry its many tasks in 1945. It must depend upon your contribution to continue its great work. Don't let "The Greatest Mother!"

File Claims By Mail After March 10

Executive Director V. E. Barnes of the Kentucky Unemployment Compensation Commission announced today at Frankfort that after March 10 all claims for unemployment benefits from Rowan county residents must be filed by mail rather than with claims takers of the Commission.

Barnes explained that because of the rubber shortage and gasoline rationing and the need for reducing administrative expenses it would be impossible for the Commission to send a claims taker to this county every other week, as in the past to accept unemployment claims. The last visit to be made by the claims taker will be on March 10. At that time the claims taker will explain fully the procedure for filing claims by mail after persons now claiming benefits. Any person desiring to file a claim after that date may obtain detailed information by writing to the Commission's branch office at 425 13th Street, Ashland, Ky.

At the present time 10 counties are being served by mail and the mail procedure is being extended to include 64 additional counties. The move will bring about a saving of over $7,000 a year in travel expense alone, Barnes declared.

It is expected to also prove advantageous to claimants by eliminating the necessity of periodical visits to the county seat to continue filing the claim.

YOUR CHURCH

The very presence of a church building tones up a community, It easily becomes the most vital feature of the community life. It takes the lead in fostering faith in God and goodwill among men; it stands for everything that is right and opposes everything that is wrong. Its influence is a benediction.
